The Twilight series by Stephenie Meyer has been a global phenomenon, with over 100 million copies sold worldwide. The books have been translated into more than 37 languages and have been adapted into five major motion pictures. But what do some of your favorite authors think of the Twilight series?

J.K. Rowling

J.K. Rowling, the author of the Harry Potter series, is a fan of the Twilight series. In an interview with Entertainment Weekly, Rowling said that she "really enjoyed" the books and that she thought Meyer was a "very talented writer." Rowling also said that she could relate to Meyer's experience of being a sudden success, saying that she "went through something similar" when the Harry Potter books became popular.

John Green

John Green, the author of The Fault in Our Stars and Paper Towns, is not a fan of the Twilight series. In an interview with The New York Times, Green said that he found the books to be "melodramatic" and "unrealistic." Green also said that he thought the books were "bad for young girls" because they promoted the idea that "love is more important than anything else."

Stephen King

Stephen King, the author of The Shining and Carrie, is a fan of the Twilight series. In an interview with The Guardian, King said that he thought the books were "well-written" and that he "enjoyed them very much." King also said that he thought Meyer was a "talented writer" and that he was "impressed" by her ability to create such a popular series.

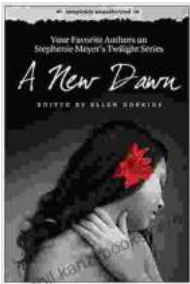

Margaret Atwood

Margaret Atwood, the author of The Handmaid's Tale and Oryx and Crake, is not a fan of the Twilight series. In an interview with The Globe and Mail, Atwood said that she found the books to be "vapid" and "unoriginal." Atwood also said that she thought the books were "bad for young girls" because they promoted the idea that "women are weak and need to be rescued by men."

Fazit

So, what do your favorite authors think of the Twilight series? As you can see, there is a wide range of opinions on the books. Some authors, like J.K. Rowling and Stephen King, are fans of the series, while others, like John Green and Margaret Atwood, are not. Ultimately, whether or not you enjoy the Twilight series is a matter of personal opinion. But one thing is for sure:

the series has had a major impact on popular culture, and it continues to be one of the most popular book series of all time.
